Brief Description About Proposed Points:

After the completion of Login page, came across the various more attractive login page designs. We performed some modifications onto the login page and gave different UI for login error message. Modifications were not as of complete change in login page but changed the background of Login Page and added much attractive as well as cooler gradient image which increased the attractiveness of the Login page than it was of before. As we have to work forward for making a page where images can be uploaded to the database. Hence, for the better suggestions, we contacted to our mentor and discussed various types of languages which we can use in our project for database working. For storing data (images) as well as all the events details which will be uploaded and fetched easily, he suggested MySQL will be the better to perform coding easily, effectively, and quickly. We finally decided to use phpMyAdmin as our database. Lastly, we started looking out for references, videos for building up the image uploading page.
